

ANNUAL BLEED Begins Today

The 1959 McGill Blood Donor Clinic officially gets under way this morning at 10 am in the Union, when Dr. C. D. Solin, honorary chairman of this year's drive, will cut the ceremonial ribbon and donate the first pint. The clinic will be open today and throughout all of this week from 9 am until 5 pm except for Wednesday, when the clinic will remain open until 8 in the evening.

The opening ceremony will commence at 9:55 this morning, when a procession of cars bearing campus dignitaries will follow a police escort down Graduates' Row to the Union. Included among these dignitaries are Dr. Muriel Roscoe, Dean D. L. Mordell of the Faculty of Engineering, Prof. Kierans of the School of Commerce, and Harry Griffiths of the Athletics Department. The Red Cross will be represented by Colonel Fisher, the Provincial Red Cross Commissioner, Mrs. Mary Johnson, Director of the Blood Donor Panel, and Mr. Gerald Bronfman, Chairman of the Red Cross Building Committee and member of the Executive Board. Mr. Bronfman will reply on behalf of the Red Cross to Dr. Solin.

The entire third floor and most of the second floor in the Union have been taken over by the Red Cross and the Blood Drive Committee, who have set up the beds, desks, booths, tables and chairs that are necessary for the clinic's smooth operation. A double-size clinic will be in operation this year, with full facilities to handle the expected crowds. A spokesman for the Red Cross pointed out that this year's system will avoid the lines and waiting of previous years because of the increase in the number of staff as well as the number of beds.

"Bloody Mary", patron lady of the McGill Blood Drive, and symbolic of faculty supremacy in the Drive, will be placing herself under the protective wing of the members of the undergraduate faculty that has the highest percentage of donors in this year's Drive.

"Bloody Boris", a discarded fossilized relic of the Boer War, is the trophy that goes to the graduate faculty with the highest percentage of donors.

The Blood Drive Committee emphasized that all students who are ineligible to give their blood either because of age or a past history of jaundice, are required to register at the clinic as ineligible; otherwise they will not credit their faculty, fraternity, club, etc.

Appointments can be made today and throughout the rest of the week to give blood. Starting tomorrow, Tuesday, the appointment booth will be at the information booth on the second floor of the Union. Today, Monday, appointment booths will be located at the following places and hours:

Arts Building	11:45-2:15
Engineering Building	11:45-2:15
Law Building	11:45-2:15
Wilson Hall	11:45-2:15

McGill Trial Decides Killer's Fate

Last Friday evening, the Mock Trial in Redpath Hall, part of Open House, was staged before an estimated audience of 550.

The basic issues of the manslaughter case which the Law Faculty reconstructed were whether the consumption of 4 qts. of beer constitutes drunkenness; whether, at the time of the shooting, the accused's daughter was on his lap or elsewhere; and whether a rifle may be considered empty when the ammunition indicator points to zero.

The actual case of which the trial was based took place last year. The names were changed to protect the parties involved. While seated in her Mother-in-law's kitchen, Mary Isobel Cooper was shot through the heart by a bullet from a gun resting on her husband's knees a few feet away from her. Her husband, Harvey Cooper, Esq., was charged with manslaughter.

John Long, Q.C., prominent Montreal criminal lawyer, took the part of the judge. Third year Law students acted as defence and prosecution while first and second year students formed the jury.

The Crown charged Harvey Cooper with the manslaughter of his wife on the evening of September 14th, 1959 in Windsor

Mills, P.Q. The defense pleaded not guilty.

Witnesses testified that Cooper, the defendant, had gone shooting earlier in the day, had had a few beers and returned home. As he sat in the kitchen with his gun in his lap, it went off, killing his wife.

Mr. Cooper told the prosecution that his only reason for bringing the rifle into the house was to adjust the aim. He was certain that it was empty. He could not see how a bullet could be in the barrel when the indicator pointed to zero.

He estimated the time of the shooting to have been "much less than an hour" after his arrival. He stated, also, that during that time he drank one quart of beer. Four quarts of beer was his normal quota for an afternoon.

He emphasized strongly, however, that his daughter was jumping on his lap, that she kicked the trigger and accidentally shot his wife.

In their address to the jury the Defence attested that even Terry Brown, the deceased's brother, assumed that the gun was empty and that Cooper brought the gun into the house only to repair it. He was not, therefore, criminally negligent or guilty of manslaughter.

The Prosecution pointed out that Cooper had consumed four quarts of beer and was therefore drunk. Drunkenness, they stated, is criminal negligence. They stated that Cooper did not repair his gun and, therefore, had no reason to bring the gun into the house. Furthermore, he was negligent in letting the child play on his lap while the rifle was there.

The Judge defined manslaughter as "culpable homicide not amounting to murder".

The jury returned a verdict of "Not Guilty".

Bald Soprano Hits Right Note, To be Repeated.

Players' Club has announced that two additional performances of Eugene Ionesco's "The Bald Soprano" have been planned. This extension is the result of overwhelming interest from both McGill and non-McGill people who attended two performances last Saturday. "The Bald Soprano" was originally produced by Dan Baran as Players' Club's contribution to McGill's Open House.

"The Bald Soprano" will be presented in the Walter M. Stewart Room at 2:30 and 8:00 on Sunday, October 31. Because the budget doesn't allow for these extra shows, a minimum admission rate of $0.50 must be charged. Reservations for tickets can be made at the Union's Ticket Office.

On Saturday night, Premier Sauvé announced that the Quebec Government will provide statutory grants to universities in this province.

In addition, he stated that the government will guarantee loans to universities for capital spending to increase their facilities, keep tuition fees within the reach of middle income families, and aid gifted children of poorer families by means of bursaries and scholarships.

In reference to the issue of Federal grants to universities from which about $25,000,000 is available for the six universities in Quebec, Mr. Sauvé remarked that although he was optimistic about settling this question, education in this province will be aided through our own resources. However he felt that money held for Quebec in Ottawa would make actual resources all the greater.

The premier said that although Quebec universities must be independent from outside influence, political or otherwise, the state must have the right to check on public funds.

"The provincial government will be asked by the Legislature to guarantee loans by universities for capital expenditures," he stated. The government would also assume the interest payments and amortization of the loans in whole or in part.

This proposal will extend payment for capital costs into the future, instead of being taken care of immediately. In the meantime, enough money will be made available for current administration expenses at the universities.

Sauvé remarked that he realized that universities could not be run solely on the fees now received. "They do need help and will get it." He said that if an attempt is made to cover administration costs only with fees, education would then be restricted to the wealthy.

Federal grants to universities, rejected by Quebec universities every year except the first (1952) are based on a payment of $1.50 a head of population in each province. The money is then distributed to universities on a ratio based on the registration of full-time degree students at Dec. 1.

The Canadian universities Foundation now holds roughly $17,500,000 in Federal grants which Quebec's six institutions of higher learning (U of M, McGill, Laval, Bishop's, Sir George William College and Sherbrooke) have declined after the Quebec Government stated opposition to Federal assistance.

This amount, including interest, represents the money that would have been available to the six universities in the last three fiscal years ended March 31. An estimated $7,500,000 for 1959-60, not yet paid to the foundation by the government, will boost the figure to $25,000,000.

The Life You Save

McGill's annual blood drive kicks off today on a five day spree calculated to leave every McGill student minus one pint of blood. Visitors to the Union cannot miss seeing the elaborate decorations, the Red Cross flags, and the banner "Don't Get Caught with Your Pints Down". Other hoopla in connection with the event includes a ceremonial official opening this morning, inter-faculty and inter-fraternity contests, and various gimmicks and prizes calculated to attract the largest number of donors possible.

This year's Drive has been given a tremendous promotional campaign. It is literally impossible for McGill students to be unaware of its existence and thus there is no tangible reason, except apathy, why McGill does not turn the tables and soundly whip the University of Montreal in the percentage of student donors.

The Blood Drive committee has several innovations designed to make it even more easy for students to donate. The Drive itself has set up quarters in the Ballroom of the Union so as to facilitate a quicker turnover. To save even more time, advance appointments can be made so that the donor is not required to wait at all.

Giving blood does not hurt. It does not take much time. And blood donated by McGill students over the years has saved countless lives. If you shirk your duty and do not give blood you are hurting yourself in the long run. As the slogan goes, "The life you save may be your own".

Encouraging Words From Sauvé

It is indeed refreshing to be able to praise the provincial government for its stand on university finances. But that is precisely what we are going to do.

When news first leaked out about the Premier's new plan enabling the universities to receive the money now held by Ottawa in the form of federal grants, we were frankly pessimistic. No details were mentioned on statutory guarantees which would legally guarantee the universities money, regardless of whether they played ball with the government. But now Mr. Sauvé has put himself on record as planning to introduce a bill making provincial grants to universities statutory. This is indeed an abrupt about face from the days when official Union Nationale policy was to judge the needs of each university "on its merits".

Refreshing, too, is Sauvé's statement that Quebec will not rely solely on federal money if the grants question is settled with Ottawa, but rather aid the universities "through our own resources" as well.

It seems that a change in leadership in Quebec has also brought a change in views. Reading over Mr. Sauvé's speech at the University of Montreal we see countless points which were first proposed by the students in their briefs to the Provincial Government. It remains yet for Mr. Sauvé to act on his new promises. In the meantime the students of Quebec can retain an air of cautious optimism.

The Greatest Show On Earth

Despite rather dampening weather conditions last weekend's Open House proved to be the biggest and best yet. On the attendance side, we are told that Buildings and Grounds Department counters indicate some 50,000 people visited McGill. As an informative display Open House could not have done better. Every department cooperated in putting its best foot forward. Exhibits ranging from weather prediction via radar to a mock trial by student-lawyers enthralled the public. From the dramatic angle both the Open House Revue and the Players Club "Bald Soprano" scored smashing hits. The cast of the former is planning a road trip to Toronto while the Players will be repeating their performance later this week by public demand. Perhaps the greatest effect Open House had was on prospective university students in tours from the high schools.

The organization of Open House was a long, exhaustive task. Faculty members and students involved are to be heartily congratulated for their efforts. Extra special mention is due the tireless core of students on the Open House Committee, who devoted many months of work in preparation.

Public Swamps McGill

Close to 50,000 people, 7,000 of them high school students, swarmed through the buildings and corridors of McGill Friday and Saturday to find out what a university is and what it has to offer.

The "Meet McGill" weekend was opened at 2 pm. Friday by the Hon. Onésime Gagnon, lieutenant governor of the Province of Quebec, who 15 minutes earlier had the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws conferred upon him at a private convocation following a Governor's Luncheon.

"I couldn't have had a nicer birthday present," the lieutenant governor, 71 Thursday, told the intimate gathering in a brief address after he received his degree.

A heavy downpour failed to dampen Mr. Gagnon's equanimity, already subjected to the roar of heavy Sherbrooke street traffic as he spoke just outside the Roddick Gates where he officially launched "open house".

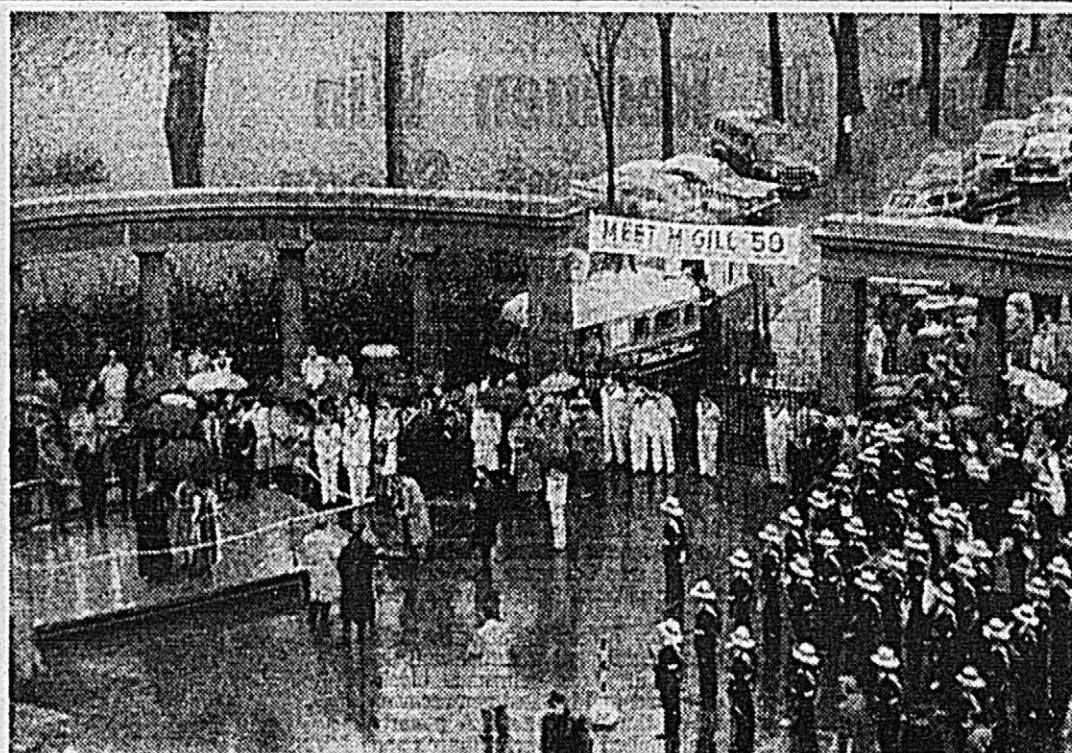

He good-naturedly offered to eliminate "four or five pages of my opening speech so that we can get out of the rain" and did so, while declaring that "it is unfortunate too many people, young and old, do not realize the importance of higher education or the drastic changes it has undergone in the past 25 years."

"It is well and good to speak of government grants and subsidies," he said, "and we seem to be on the eve of a new deal — but citizens must also do their duty."

Referring to the McGill Alma Mater Fund which raises operating funds, he suggested that there also be a "McGill Friends" fund.

After officially opening the campus, the lieutenant-governor and his official party toured the exhibits of the schools and faculties.

On Friday, 69 groups of 50 high school students each headed for various points of interest on campus. They represented a large proportion of the more than 750 people who poured through Roddick Gates every hour. The campus had a holiday air about it as students and adults toured the displays set up in various buildings.

On Saturday, a high proportion of adults visited the university. The largest amount of interest was aroused by the displays of Radiology in the Medical Building and of the Cyclotron and the electronic brain in the Electronics Building.

Jamie Plante, Chairman of the Open House Committee, had this to say, "The whole weekend was a success and several graduates mentioned to me that this compared most favorably with past Open Houses."

Debaters Display Logic

Four of McGill's senior debaters gave an exhibition of their skill to an Open House audience in Redpath Hall Friday, October 23 at 5:30 p.m.

J.J. Elkin, B.A. 3, and Mortyn Zuckerman, a second year Law student, proposed the resolution that "the further development of nuclear weapons should be prohibited by international agreement". This motion was opposed by Leslie Malcovitch, B.Sc. 4, and Gordon Echenberg B.A. 3.

One of the decisive factors which led the audience to choose the affirmative the winning side was a graphic example of the subtler points of debating technique. Elkin, the affirmative's first speaker, began the debate by defining the resolution. He defined the "should" of the resolution as "desirable" and then said that the debate hinged upon the desirability of the cessation of nuclear testing.

This definition was not challenged by the negative and thus the affirmative countered many fine points made by the negative about the unfeasibility of such an agreement by insisting in their final rebuttal that the resolution stated the desirability, not the feasibility, of an international agreement.

Reds Fail To Tame Mustangs

Hopes Of Redmen Win Only In Blueprint Stage

by PHIL SINGER

For the twenty-first straight year the cry of "wait till next year" has gone up in the Redmen camp. Western's 12-3 triumph on Saturday before 4000 spectators

Western opened the second quarter with a sustained drive that went 75 yards in 7 plays. End Bob Pearson and fullbacks Meco Poliziani and Lionel Conacher ground out the yards on this march. John Wydareny went over for the TD on a quick pitchout play from the 12 yard line.

A 43 yard pass play, Cosentino to Gary Boug on the McGill 3 set up the second Mustang major. This time it was Conacher who counted the six pointer. Both converts were missed.

Strong defensive play by both sides highlighted a rather dull second half. Jack Behrmann blocked a punt and the Redmen recovered on the Mustang 42. A penalty again halted a powerful march and the Red and White had to be satisfied with another single by Irvin. Crisp tackling by guard Chuck Wood and tackle Tom Steff contained the Mustang attack. Interceptions halted two McGill drives as defensive halfback Roger Stewart, an all-star last year, nared two of Roberts' passes.

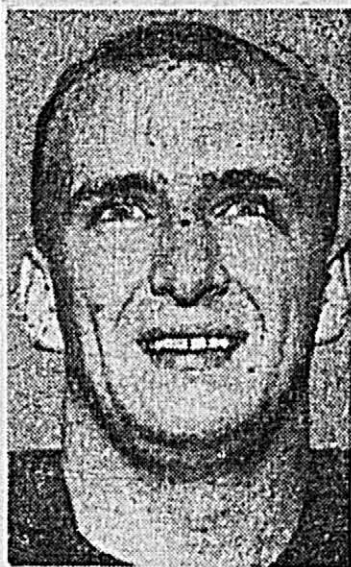

ROBERTS SHINES

Redmen quarterback Johnny Roberts played his best game of the year on Saturday. He completed 10 of 17 attempted passes for a total of 166 yards and directed the McGill squad brilliantly throughout the contest. Carl Hansen, Joe Irvin, Gordie Merritt and Johnny Moore and turned in starry performances for the Redmen.

Hard running Lionel Conacher (the small train) was the outstanding man on the field. Time and time again he broke through the Redmen line for substantial gains. Meco Poliziani also shone on offense for the Mustangs, and Bill Mitchell played well defensively.

BULLPEN: Redman Bob Milligan, who had been used sparingly to date, showed well. He is fast and was able to outrun pass defenders. The Redmen ground attack was not as strong as it was in London last Saturday. Cosentino completed only two passes: one for 38 yards and the other for 40...

Rugger Win Not Enough To Get Championship

The McGill rugger team won the last game of a home and home series with Toronto 3-0 on Saturday.

The win came after an 8-3 loss last Saturday which was the first of a two game total point series. This left both teams with one win each, with Toronto winning the championship on total points.

This week game was played in what turned out to be a big mud puddle which eventually turned the players into muddy figures making them indistinguishable from one another.

Coach Covo said the team played a good ball game with Chapman, Murchison, and Meade being the outstanding players.

With intercollegiate play wound up, the Redmen are concentrating their efforts on the city league in which they are scheduled to play Barbarians Tuesday night.

GORD MERRITT

at Molson Stadium eliminated McGill's slight mathematical chances of winning the championship.

The script was almost the same one that the Redmen used last weekend in London. "We beat ourselves," was how quarterback Johnny Roberts summed the game up, referring to the costly penalties that helped the Mustangs overtake the McGill squad. A touchdown early in the game by Joe Irvin was called back due to a holding penalty called on Mark Hatt. Irvin kicked a single two plays later to give the Red and White a 1-0 lead. Another Redmen single was scored by Irvin a booming 50 yard punt the next time they got the ball. This one was set up by a great defensive effort, when the McGill team stopped the Mustangs on third down with one yard to go.

Gaels Blow Game To Blues Despite Desperate Attack

TORONTO (Oct. 24) — Doug Blair and Doug Loughheed became Toronto's latest heroes as the Blues eeked out a 7-0 win over the hapless Queen's Golden Gaels. The thrilling contest saw the Gaels come back late in the last quarter to narrow a 7-0 Varsity lead to 1 point. The all-important convert attempt was dramatically blocked by ends Blair and Loughheed, however, and the Blues held on to win 7-0. It was their second win over the Gaels in two weeks.

Pete Potter gave Toronto a second quarter lead with a single. In the third quarter, the Blues carried 48 yards in 12 plays. Doug Boyd carried the ball across the 3 at 9:04 to give the Blues the win. Potter missed the convert attempt.

The Gael TD came from a drive which started on their 38. Dom Plumley threw a 10 yard endzone pass to Mike Wicklum. The convert was blocked and the Blues took the muddy battle 7-0.

The fact that the Gaels held the Blues to 14 points in 2 games may have a great effect on the choice of the Intercollegiate champions. In case of a tie, the team with the most points for will take the Yates Trophy.

Waterpolo Team Shaping Up For Collegiate Meets

Despite the outcome of Wednesday night's game against Snowdon "Y" in which the McGill Waterpolo Team were overcome 12-11, the team is shaping up very well, and good performances are expected in the Intercollegiate meets.

During the last four weeks the boys have been turning out for regular practice under the expert eye of coach R. Firth.

Outstanding in Wednesday night's game were H. Pelkni, E. Menashe, C. Grout, the Halmy brothers and goalie J. Suistunen. All veterans of last year's championship team. Also back from last year are L. Jacobovits, M. Belinsky and the Kauser brothers.

Regular exhibition matches are being arranged for Wednesday nights in preparation for the first game with Toronto on Nov. 27. Entrance to games at the Currie Gym pool is free and everyone is welcome.

DAILY SPORTS

Possibility Of Mid-Week Game Under Discussion

TORONTO (CUP) The possibility of a mid-week play-off in the Eastern Intercollegiate Football League (O.Q.A.A.) has been discussed, but this contingency is covered by an agreement made between Queen's, McGill, Western and Toronto last June.

It has been a principle laid down for some years by the University Administrators concerned that mid-week games, play-offs or otherwise, cannot be sanctioned for major football competition, because of the disruption in classes, not only for the players but for the whole student body.

With this in mind, proposed changes in declaring a champion in the Eastern Intercollegiate Football League (O.Q.A.A.) were circulated last June to the Executive Committee representatives and the Athletic Directors of Queen's McGill, Western and Toronto so that the Eastern champion could be declared in time to play for the Canadian Championship at Varsity Stadium on November 14.

Two changes in the present regulations were set out:

(1) The traditional play-off between the first and second place teams (provided the second place team had beaten the first place team at least once) was waived.

(2) In the event of a tie for first place between two or three teams, the Championship would be awarded to the highest scoring team, the formula to be decided by agreement between the four colleges.

Thus, under this agreement, should a tie for first place occur between two or three teams at the end of the current season, the team that has scored most points against the other tied team or teams will represent the East at Varsity Stadium on November 14.
